DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, “the wavelength modulation scheme to add the control data” as recited in claim 21 must be shown or the feature(s) canceled from the claim(s). No new matter should be entered.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as “amended.” If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either “Replacement Sheet” or “New Sheet” pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 8, 21 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 8 and 21 recite "modulating the center wavelength of the optical signal to establish a (wavelength) difference between the center wavelengths of the filter mechanism and the optical signal to represent data." It is unclear how the difference between the center wavelengths of the filter mechanism and the optical signal is established by merely modulating the center wavelength of the optical signal. It appears that certain steps are missing from the claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Epworth et al (US Patent No. 5,777,773).

Regarding claim 8 (as far as understood), Epworth et al disclose optical frequency control system, as shown in Fig. 5, comprising:

directing the optical signal (optical signal is generated by laser (1)) through a filter mechanism (3) having a passband function (it would have been obvious that the filter has passband function); and modulating the optical signal (the external modulator (2) modulates the optical signal).

Epworth et al disclose optical control system as discussed above and differs from the claimed invention in that Epworth et al do not specifically disclose that the optical signal include a center wavelength. However, it is well known that optical signal include center wavelength or part of the signal where the signal is at its highest point. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide optical signal with center wavelength. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to select the center wavelength of the optical signal in order to provide maximum power level of the signal.

Furthermore, Epworth et al do not disclose the modulating step include the steps of: i) providing a look-up table having wavelength differences associated with data values, ii) obtaining from the look-up table a wavelength difference for a given data value, and iii) encoding the given data value in the optical signal by establishing the obtained difference between the center wavelengths of the filter mechanism and the optical signal. However, as discussed on the remark filed on March 07, 2006, applicant indicates that above steps are self explanatory that those of ordinary skill in the art are able to practice (see page 7 of the remarks). Based on this, since the steps are well known to artisan of ordinary skill in the art, therefore it would have been obvious to perform the above steps in order to modulate data to the optical signal.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claim 21 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
